Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Saturday 31 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some sunny intervals but scattered showers, mainly in the south.

This Evening and Tonight:
Northern Scotland mostly dry, with some cloud breaks and turning rather chilly. Elsewhere, heavy showers in the south and east of England fading, leaving just scattered showery outbreaks; rather cloudy, so temperatures holding up for most.

Sunday:
Many northern areas seeing some sunny intervals, just an isolated light shower. Across the south, dry, bright weather at times but some showers scattered around, perhaps heavy across southern England.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Scattered showers for southern England Monday, otherwise many areas dry. More widespread showers Tuesday, before showers become heavier Wednesday with a risk of thunder. Temperatures recovering after a cool start.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.